MONDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 3.

THE LORILLARDS.-The Lorillards (Pierre and George) are the richest tobacconists in the world, and form the oldest house in America. They are worth three millions, and have a business which brings them annually a fortune. Their aucestors tounded the tolacco trade, and the children have kept it up with wonderful success, but the present proprietors are getting old and prospects indicate a change. It is protable that in a few years the business will be in other hands and the fortune will be dissolved. The Lorillards were formerly a very steady class of men, who attended closely to business and avoided ed everything like a fast life. At present, however, both Fierre and George cwa fast hories which have made remarkable time at the Long Brach are: On one coassion the horses here. Bra ch are: On one cocasion the horse; belonging to these brothers were pitted a minst (a. h other The Asters tare illustrated the success of the far trade, while the Lor Bards snow what a text is levied on the slave of tobseco. The Stustis (Robert L. and Alexance) illustrate the profits le naure of the sugar business, while Vanderble's success shows what attainments may be made in railway weath. We thus carn that any turiness when will followed may visid ta some profits. The fortunes made out of he tobaccochewers' pennie and the petty traffic in confectionery teach the wird not .: o despice the day of small thin.s. - Knicker tocker Rrothers.
